Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Milstead in view of the admitted prior art. Regarding claims 1 and 4 Milstead US 5,362,193 teaches a method of moving a portable batching plant comprising the steps of:

securing a vertical frame to a vehicle;

mounting a lift member within the frame;

selectively driving the lift member between upper and lower positions. Milstead does not teach mounting a frac blender on the lifting member. The admitted prior art teaches mounting a frac blender on a pivotal mount for allowing the blender to be lowered into a working position. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of invention to modify the steps taught by Milstead by placing a frac blender on the lift member as taught by the admitted prior art in order to allow the device to place the blender in the proper operating position without needing to use more space on the bed of the truck than the size of the blender requires.

Regarding claims 2,3,5 and 6 Milstead further teaches the steps of providing a slip connection between the lift member and both the vertical frame support member and the drive member for lifting the device.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed November 16,2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant arguments center on the admitted prior art not moving in a substantially vertical direction to place a frac blender into an operational position. The examiner is in agreement with this view of the prior art. However the Milstead reference teaches the vertical movement of a slurry blending device along a vertical frame member. As such It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of invention to replace the blender (36) taught by Milstead with a frac blender as taught by the prior art. While the nature of the frac blender is not really material to the instant invention, the blender taught by Milstead may very well be capable of blending the frac mixture as described in the instant application. As for the operating position of the blender one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention could have envisioned using the blender at any position along its vertical travel limitations. As such the claims stand rejected as before.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
